

Parenting

When you start to become a parent more work is required to be done than previously in your life.

It's just a lot that you need to be ready to do.

But you can't be ready for everything, life works that way, you have to accept what happens, as long as you and your friends are living life that is humane.

