

Political Polarization

You get an vision how things are today and might be tomorrow. You decision might change over time and that is fine.

People work to get your interest and attention and the political climate will from period look different from what you expected.

Today I think Ulf Kristersson is interesting as a political candidate compared to the competition.

- No things is changed.
- World works as planned and we expect you to like it.
- If the fish is gone in the sea that is not our problem.
- Work is just work, its not fun. What is a blog and why do you have it?

Don't forget that you can vote green.